The following are the ways we can use your personal information for marketing purposes:

Level of processing and profiling

None

By understanding how you use our products and services we can improve our overall customer experience and send you relevant offers tailored just for you.

If you opt for Basic Profiling, you allow us to send you personalised offers and promotions based on how you use our products and services; based on data such as your calling and messaging activities, topup information, or any other information related to your account.

If you opt for Advanced Profiling, you allow us to do basic profiling and allow us to identify your location on our network to be able to make recommendations for offers and services in your area, that you might find interesting.

Network data and traffic data

YES

By collecting network data and traffic data from devices such as your phone, we can improve how our network is performing, optimise the services we offer to you and ensure our communications are relevant and tailored. For example, recommending bundles and extras that reflect the way you use your mobile and fixed data allowance.

Third party offers

YES

Occasionally, we would like to inform you about offers from our selected partners if we think they are of interest to you.

These are the channels from where we can contact you for marketing purposes:
